Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Wednesday 26 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly cloudy for north and northeast, sunshine and showers elsewhere.

Today:
Damp start in northeast, then sunny spells developing across much of Scotland with a few afternoon showers mainly in the south and west. Feeling much warmer with lighter winds. Northeast and far north staying cooler and cloudier.

Tonight:
Cloudy at first in the northeast, with mist and fog at times, but cloud breaking and becoming clear for much of the country. Feeling quite chilly despite the light winds.

Thursday:
Early cloud clearing and becoming a dry and bright day for all. Feeling pleasantly warm and light winds.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Friday dry and bright in the east but some light rain in the west and south.
Saturday and Sunday generally dry and bright but becoming windier later on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.